Reading good books on Wildflowers and how to grow them is time well spent.

FERNS

Ferns listed below do well in light sun or partial shade, but will grow taller in shade where more moisture & humus are usually available. They add a TOUCH OF FINESSE to the Wildflower Garden. Ferns are ex. to take over bare spots left by early spring blooming flowers and equally beautiful planted among perennials as wildflowers.

1f-BRACKEN FERN-Pteridium acuilinum. 2-4'. A single broad spreading frond. If damaged another will appear. Spreads underground by stolens. does best in drier open woods. Sandy soil. Light sun or light shade. This one must be planted 1 to 2" deep and lightly mulched.

2f-INTERRUPTED FERN-Osmunda claytoniana. 2-4'. Nice light green fronds develop from the early brown woolly "fern fiddles". A few fronds on most plants have fertile seed spores midway. Upland woods or damp places. Partial shade. Soil rich in leafmold, from deciduous trees.

3f-LADY FERN-Athyrium filix femina. 2-3'. Very graceful fronds; finer cut foliage. Easy in open woods in light sun or shade. Average soil. This one stays in clumps and does not spread underground.

4f-MAIDENHAIR FERN-Adiantum pedatum. Delicate fronds held horizontally on wiry 12-18" ebony stems. Sends up an occasional frond during the summer. Grows in shade of deciduous trees or light sun. Average soil rich in humus.

5f-OSTRICH FERN-Pteritis nodulosa. 3-4'. Size depends on moisture available. Ex. fern besides a pool, along a shaded wall or in open woods. Graceful plumey fronds. Soil rich in humus. Spreads underground.

6f-CINNAMON FERN-Osmunda cinnamomea. 2-4'. Sturdy light green foliage. Fertile fronds appear first & dies as fiddles of true leaves develop. Average woods soil. Prefers shade and ample moisture.

Each 40¢...Collection of one of each of the six above....$2.20.
NOTE....Plant ferns shallow, barely covering the crown. Wet down thoroughly & mulch. Keep moist. Falling leaves take over after first year.

CORYDALIS BULBOSA...Native of Switzerland.
low-CORYDALIS BULBOSA--A RARE flower that blooms in this area in mid-April until early May. 6" stalks of rosy-purple flowers are held above ferny foliage.
